1535 – 1620 The Historical Purpose of Feng Shui

GM Dr Stephen Skinner

The Historical Purpose of Feng Shui was not to 'live in harmony with nature' or 'spiritual ecology' nor was it to just improve the interior decoration. Its purpose was to accumulate qi (ch'i) and to organise it in such a way that the 'luck' of occupants of the building would increase and their life be made easier, more fertile and richer, blessing them with abundance. The original names for these practices were Dili and Kan you, not feng shui. Dili concerned itself with identifying the patterns in the landscape, the presence of mountain dragons and water dragons, and their effects on adjacent buildings, so it is not surprising that the modern Chinese meaning of that word is 'geography'. Kan you related to the timing of changes, and the relationship between direction and time. In the third century these subjects came to be called feng shui, and the effects of wind and water on the accumulation of qi were formulated.
