

International Feng Shui Convention

THE 22ND INTERNATIONAL
FENG SHUI CONVENTION

FENG SHUI AS A SUCCESSFUL CAREER IN PERIOD 9

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA

23 – 28 OCTOBER 2026

Feng Shui as a Successful Career in Period 9

For the first time in its history, the International Feng Shui Convention arrives in Europe, bringing the global Feng Shui community to Romania.

Held in the year marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of Constantin Brâncuși, the visionary sculptor who believed "Simplicity is Complexity resolved", IFSC 2026 draws inspiration from the iconic Endless Column, a symbol of the enduring connection between Heaven, Human, and Earth (Tian Ren Di), a principle that lies at the heart of Feng Shui.

As we navigate Period 9, an era characterised by transformation, visibility, and innovation, new possibilities are emerging for Feng Shui practitioners around the world. Bringing together masters, practitioners, and students from more than 30 countries, IFSC 2026 explores how Feng Shui can flourish as a meaningful, relevant, and successful profession in today's evolving landscape.

Through expert presentations and engaging discussions, delegates will gain valuable insights into emerging career opportunities, industry developments, and the increasing integration of Feng Shui with architecture, design, wellness, and modern living. Join us to learn, connect, and equip yourself for success in Period 9.

IFSC 2026 Bucharest is held under the Patronage of the Romanian Ministry of Culture.

While knowledge opens the door to the profession, true mastery is built upon wisdom, character, integrity, and responsibility. In this presentation, Grand Master Tan Khoon Yong and Senior Master Goh Guan Leong explore the timeless principle of 尊师重道 and the values that distinguish a practitioner from a respected master. 11:15 - 11:55	Master Naly Long	Knowledge, Training, and Professional Development in Feng Shui Exploring how classical study, structured training, mentorship, and ongoing professional development form the foundation of long-term competence, credibility, and excellence in Feng Shui practice. This session examines what it truly means to mature as a practitioner, from first certification to recognized authority and the disciplined path that connects them. It addresses the often-unspoken question of how a serious practitioner continues to learn after the formal education is complete. The session will also consider the tension between rapid commercialized training and the slow cultivation that the classical tradition has always demanded.
12:00 - 12:40	Senior Master Yap Boh Chu	AI and Feng Shui: Threat, Tool, or Both? A necessary conversation for the Feng Shui profession in 2026. As AI applications offer instant readings, answer classical questions and provide clients with machine generated advice, practitioners must consider how the profession should respond. This session explores where AI can genuinely support consulting through chart calculations, case organisation, research and report drafting, and where it risks diluting the discipline. It examines how experienced practitioners can maintain authority when students seek second opinions from ChatGPT, and the responsibilities of Feng Shui Masters in safeguarding classical knowledge. Ultimately, it asks whether human intuition, pattern recognition and lived experience remain the practitioner's irreplaceable contribution in an AI driven future.

This session explores what happens after certification and how knowledge becomes a profession and a business. It examines securing first clients, overcoming self-doubt, building credibility, commanding professional fees, and earning recognition. Drawing on industry research, professional interactions, and real-life case studies, it reveals how leading practitioners navigate setbacks, competition, and opportunities, transforming consulting practices into respected brands, academies, teams, and influential networks. Attendees will discover the habits, decisions, and strategies that create recognition, influence, authority, and lasting success.

This session examines the practical realities of running a consultancy in a cycle defined by visibility, transformation, and rapid change — and how to adapt without losing one's centre. What changes when the world rewards visibility? How does a serious practitioner participate in the noise of social media without becoming the noise? What new opportunities does Period 9 open for those prepared to meet them, and what older patterns of practice are now closing?

In this exclusive presentation, Grand Master Dr. Stephen Skinner introduces Using the Feng Shui Luopan, the first complete English-language practical guide to the San He Luopan, based on Master White Crane's original Chinese sources. Delegates will learn correct handling, directional measurement, building orientation, landform assessment, and the purpose and application of San He rings in advanced Classical Feng Shui formulas. Ideal for beginners and experienced practitioners, this session offers authentic insights into traditional methods from a leading authority on Chinese metaphysics.
11:40 - 12:20	Master Dr. Sabine Kullak	Looking Beyond the Original Question: Enriching Client Consultations with Ba Zi Suan Ming Clients typically seek Feng Shui or Ba Zi Suan Ming consultations to address specific questions or concerns. Yet Ba Zi analysis can reveal much more, offering insights into personality, life themes, strengths, challenges, and current circumstances. This deeper understanding helps practitioners see the individual behind the question and develop recommendations that are technically sound and tailored to the client's character, needs, and life stage. It also highlights situations requiring greater care, sensitivity, and professional judgement. This presentation demonstrates how Ba Zi Suan Ming can strengthen professional consultations, producing more personalised, responsible, and effective outcomes for every client in professional practice.

15:15 - 15:55	Senior Master Cristina Groza	From Brâncuși's Endless Column to Feng Shui at the Edge of a New Frontier The convention's closing reflection. For millennia, Feng Shui has studied how built space affects the human being who inhabits it. As our world changes and the very idea of "habitat" begins to shift, one of humanity's oldest disciplines of dwelling finds itself facing questions it has never had to ask before. This closing keynote returns to the vertical axis of Brâncuși's Endless Column, a final image of continuity, ascension, and the unbroken thread between earth and sky that our discipline has always honored. It opens a conversation that may define the next twenty years of Feng Shui practice, without yet revealing where that thread will lead.
